1 Introduction

This document outlines how to access and use the DfE's MP Parliamentary Constituency look-up table.

2 Quick look guide

The screenshot shows the GitHub repository page for 'dfc-analytical-services/mp-lookup'. Annotations point to various features:

- Information on how to use this resource and sources that underpin it: Points to the 'README.md' file in the file browser.
- Preview of the data in the lookup which is easy to navigate, useful to check a specific constituency: Points to the 'Preview' tab of the 'mp_lookup.csv' file.
- Can take URL to retrieve data programmatically in R, python, etc.: Points to the 'Code' tab of the 'mp_lookup.csv' file.
- Automatic update of the lookup every Monday morning. Ability to see changes, e.g. as a result of vacancy filled or whip suspended: Points to the 'History' tab of the 'mp_lookup.csv' file.
- Ability to download the complete lookup as a csv: Points to the download icon in the file browser.
- Transparent code that analysts can reuse: Points to the 'mp_lookup.Rproj' file in the file browser.

The 'Preview' tab of 'mp_lookup.csv' shows a table with the following columns: `psm_code`, `psm_name`, `member_id`, `full_title`, `display_nm`, `party_text`, `member_email`, and `election_result_summary_2024`.

3 What does the MP look-up table contain?

The look-up table contains a single row for each current parliamentary constituency. Each row currently contains the following items:

- Parliamentary constituency code
- Parliamentary constituency name
- Member ID of current sitting MP
- Full title of current sitting MP
- Preferred display name of current sitting MP
- Political party of current sitting MP
- Primary e-mail address of current sitting MP
- Parliamentary constituency election result from the 2024 general election
- Local authority district names and codes that fall within the parliamentary constituency
- Local authority names and codes that fall within the parliamentary constituency
- Mayoral combined authority names and codes that fall within the parliamentary constituency

Note

The MP look-up table is automatically updated every Monday if any changes to MPs are available.

4 Viewing the MP look-up table

5 Downloading the MP look-up table

The latest version of the look-up table can be downloaded by clicking the “Download raw file” button above the table as displayed on GitHub.

This download will retrieve a CSV copy of the look-up table that can be opened in Excel and PowerBI or with developer tools such as R or Python. Alternatively if you want to connect to the data using code, use the direct link to the raw mp_lookup.csv.

6 Reviewing recent updates to the look-up table

Any recent changes can be reviewed on GitHub by viewing the [github-actions\[bot\] project history](#).

7 Sources

The MP data is sourced from the UK Parliament API and the Open Geography Portal using the following R packages:

- mnis
- dfeR

The election results data is sourced from the 'candidate-level general election result data' CSV file from the UK Parliament election results page.

7.1 Location updates

Location information (for example LADs / LAs) will not be updated until a new version of the relevant source data is released. The dfeR package contains the source data from the Open Geography Portal, we will update there when new versions are available.

7.2 Locations

The location hierarchy is not perfect. Some constituencies span multiple local authorities, and often only cover small parts of those local authorities. As such we have listed all relevant locations that overlap with the constituency boundaries regardless of the size of the overlap.

LAD codes are supplied as of the 2024 lookups from ONS, we are waiting for the 2025 updates to be published before we're able to have full coverage of the latest LAD codes.

For a more detailed breakdown of the locations and codes, and also for easier manipulation of the data using code, please see the `geo_hierarchy` dataset in the dfeR package
